Educating Conscience in Mid-19th Century British India
February 25, 2020
Academic Bldg. West, Rm. 6051
5:30-7:30pm

The colonial state’s meddling in the marriage between the Brahmin Luxmeebae and her Christian convert husband, Narayen Ramchundur, unleashed potent political emotions across mid-19th century Britain and India. Their dispute provoked riots in India, but its legal resolution was celebrated in Britain for bringing "Liberty of Conscience" to India.

Ms. Butler will send you a copy of the chapter draft, which you are encouraged to read in advance. Dinner will be served.
