Woodrow Wilson and the Reimagining of Eastern Europe

Larry Wolff (NYU)

4:30 PM, Thurs., Feb. 27
Academic Bldg. (West) 6051

RBSC/CES Grad Working Group Nation & Empire Lunch with Prof. Wolff at 1:00 PM, AB 6051
More info at europe.rutgers.edu

Larry Wolff, Silver Professor of History at NYU, is author of many award-winning and widely influential books, including Woodrow Wilson and the Reimagining of Eastern Europe (2020); The Singing Turk (2016); Paolina’s Innocence (2012); The Idea of Galicia (2010); Venice and the Slavs (2001); Inventing Eastern Europe (1994); and Postcards from the End of the World (1988). Wolff also serves as Director of NYU’s Center for European and Mediterranean Studies; Executive Director of the Remarque Institute; and Co-Director of NYU Florence. Among Wolff’s many distinctions are a Guggenheim Fellowship and his election to The American Academy of Arts and Sciences.