

RUTGERS CENTER FOR EUROPEAN STUDIES

Provincializing Mathematics? Challenging the Coloniality of European Schooling

Peter Appelbaum (Arcadia University)

Charoula Stathopoulou

(University of Thessaly)

12:00 PM, Thursday, April 1

Register for the Event

Peter Appelbaum is Professor and Director of Art Education and Education Studies programs at Arcadia University in Philadelphia, USA. He is the author of among other books of Embracing Mathematics: On Becoming a Teacher and Changing with Mathematics (2008) and Children's Books for Grown-Up Teachers: Reading and Writing Curriculum Theory (2007).

Charoula Stathopoulou is Professor of Mathematics Education at the University of Thessaly, Greece, and Coordinator of the transnational Common Spaces for Integration of Roma project. She applies her formal training in Mathematics and Social Anthropology to cultural contexts of mathematics learning and Roma experiences in European schooling.

RUTGERS
School of Arts and Sciences