Are you convinced of the value of the humanities in everyday life? Do you believe in expanding access to dynamic scholarship? Have you wondered about different ways to share your work outside of the academy – especially in the new conditions created by the Covid-19 pandemic?

Although the workshop is geared toward graduate students in the humanities, all faculty, staff, and undergraduates are welcome to attend!

Join us for a hybrid workshop series introducing you to different methodologies within the field. Each session will be an opportunity to learn from a scholar-practitioner, discuss tools, research, case studies — the theory, method, and practice of the field.

RUTGERS GRADUATE PUBLIC HUMANITIES WORKSHOP

APRIL 7-8,
2022

REGISTER AND VIEW A FULL SCHEDULE:

The workshop will feature talks and hands-on learning sessions on humanities-informed policymaking, arts-integrated collaborative research, digital humanities tools, non-profit career trajectories, community-engaged programming, participatory public memory, and more.

These workshops are free but registration is required. You can participate in as many or as few sessions as you choose.

Sponsored by the SAS Dean of Humanities and the Center for Cultural Analysis

Questions can be directed to the workshop coordinator:
Kristin O'Brassill-Kulfan at ko239@history.rutgers.edu
